

Editor's Comment:

Paper is of acceptable quality. There are numerous language errors in the manuscript that I highlighted in yellow. I did not attempt to find and mark all errors and the charts and tables appear to be inconsistent with the journal. Cutting and pasting SPSS output tables seems less than professional. Not entirely confident that the correlation analysis was conducted properly - the authors need to comment on why they took the approach they did.

Not certain I understand why the authors chose the Spearman in lieu of the Pearson

Discussion section is a bit weak and could offer more analysis of the results in terms of pedagogical implications. Conclusion seems a bit too strong for the data See my additional comments in the paper.
