Compulsory REVISION comments	It seems to me that the topic contributes to daily dental practice, due to the needs that dontologists face in terms of canal treatment of child patients. In the quick review of the bibliography I found that evidently similar studies are not found in the Turkish population specifically. But there are some studies that compare different ethnic groups in permanent dentition, as a suggestion, I believe that these works could also serve to deepen the discussion and make a sharing of the data obtained in primary dentition.
Minor REVISION comments	There are minor errors in the references part
