

Editor's Comment:

I've gone through the paper and I failed to see the authors made detailed descriptions in point to point basis on the changes made on the paper. This is crucial as it determines what changes were made before and after the paper was sent for reviewing. They did not even use the function of 'review' available in MS-Word.

Hence, The paper can't be published in the present form unless detail info is shown addressing individual comments point by point form and highlighting them in the updated manuscript.

I propose you to upload a template on the journal website on the format in addressing reviews raised by the reviewers
