

Editor's Comment:

The manuscript was apparently revised according to some of the reviewers' suggestions, but it still contains many typing and formatting errors (lack of standardization of the font size and font used, for instance).

It is important that the authors, who are many, do a thorough reading and detailed correction of the whole text again. There are many authors for the text version with so many errors. It would be advisable for everyone to reread and correct it carefully. I do not recommend publication until the writing and formatting of the text is correct.
